Bugatti Type 35 short history

The Bugatti Type 35 is among the most iconic and significant cars in the history of motorsport. A masterpiece by Ettore Bugatti, it represents an outstanding blend of engineering expertise, design, elegance, lightness, and speed. Produced during the 1920s, it achieved an extraordinary number of victories in both road and track competitions. Specifically designed for the racing world, it featured technical and mechanical solutions that made it ideal for the circuits of its era. Among its notable triumphs are the 1928 Targa Florio and the 1930 Monaco Grand Prix. From an aesthetic perspective, it was distinguished by the unmistakable horse-shoe-shaped radiator grille, a signature of the Bugatti brand. Powered by an 8-cylinder 2,263 cc engine paired with a four-speed manual gearbox and equipped with a supercharger, the Bugatti Type 35 was capable of reaching a top speed of 210 km/h.
